HOUSE OF LOVE

June 15-16, Roxy, Hollywood

"I genuinely think we're capable of being the biggest band of the '90s," says House of Love singer Guy Chadwick. Big words perhaps, but since the demise of the Smiths, virtually no one has been able to fill their angst 'n' jangle shoes. Not until House of Love, that is. Currently riding the crest of British Top 40 (and American Modern Rock charts) with "Beatles and Stones," a loving tribute to '60s music (still the retro rage in England), House of Love parks its moodiness in California this month. Considering that the group filled its two prior West Coast dates with absolute ease, these will be crucial shows. And Mr. Chadwick isn't kidding when he says, "We're expecting million-selling albums. The '80s were such a cynical decade, the '90s are going to be really positive, and we want to be a part of that." So get down into the House of Love for a heavy dose of good vibes, believers. And don't forget the tie-dye. Peace.
