House Of Love, "Beatles And Stones", Mercury.... One of the main things you tell us you look to The Hard for is background info on a new band. The idea being that those folks in the programming power positions can listen for their and know what the song sounds like, but they might not have access to, or the time to read, a bio. With that in mind, here's the lo on House Of Love. From Manchester, England, led by the ubiquitous Guy Chadwick, the House Of Love have been alternately r and scorned by the Brit rock press, currently sitting on top of the heap when it comes to that country's new music scene. Ove years in the making, this is their first major label LP and is currently huge in Alternative circles. We also think "Beatles And Sto a wonderful, hypnotic piece of music, but then, as we said, you can figure that out for yourselves. KCQR, KFMU, KRIX, V WLAV, WMAD and WXRT have. For the curious, the song is about how, (according to Guy in an interview with our own Marrone), House Of Love will never be able to top what the two bands in the title have already done. So, Chadwick and band a "sucking marrow from bones", get it? (back)
