BURRELLE'S

THE HOUSE OF LOVE - "YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND" (FONTANA/ MERCURY)

Usually when you think of The House Of Love, it's the chiming guitars and Guy Chadwick's softly whispered vocals that come to mind. The first single from their soon-to-be-released album should dispel any notion that THOL don't rock hard. Brimming with bravado, the band has never sounded tighter—and yet they've never sounded more loose, more comfortable or more relaxed. Hey—the harmonies are dead on, the grooves laid on thick and the furtive guitar rings loud and clear. What more could you possibly ask? The House Of Love's "You Don't Understand"—play it! LR
